MONTHLY REPORT—November 2017

It is encouraging to know that brethren take advantage of the video Bible studies produced for the Chinese Bible School. At least two congregations in Asia use the teaching materials for their assembly. For greater reach and exposure, one of them displays the videos prominently in a shopping mall where the church entrance with a large transparent window is located. A smart move!

The Exodus course and Christians, the Sabbath and the Ten Commandments were uploaded on the school website for the public to watch. The former consists of a series of ten lessons; the latter answers the question – Are the Sabbath and the Ten Commandments binding today?

Since YouTube is banned in mainland China, we have uploaded 20 Bible-based videos on YouKu, one of China's top online video and streaming service platforms. The government allows YouKu users to release religious videos as long as the content doesn't violate the laws of the land. As of November 2017, there were 5,300 views. Thanks to the power of the internet, in six months I was able to impact thousands of souls who I was not able to reach in person. May the Lord bless the work with more truth seekers!

After finishing the recordings of the Genesis and Exodus courses, we have started a new project for the New Testament course – Tell the Story of Jesus in Chronological Order. This is an interesting project to tackle from the four unique but complementary accounts of a compassionate, empathetic, loving Savior from the books of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John. It is also a challenging project to connect the dots of Scripture without losing an ounce of the depth. May God give us wisdom, patience, and knowledge to accomplish this important project in a timely manner!

I'm grateful for the privilege of answering the highest calling to sow the seed of the truth in God's kingdom. May the Lord bless us with all sufficiency in everything we do to proclaim the Gospel of Jesus Christ!
